Faring Crackers are made only by Mr. Wing.-They are not made by others because the process is anknown to them nor have the recently works, these require a scientific in this particular branch or kind of material, and the critical knowledge indispensable in producing such an extremely light and neurishing substance as WINO'S FARINA CRACKERS, cannot be accomplished without consummate skill and the means necessary to carry it out.

The whole lusiness requires great care and good judgment, and must be carried on extensively in order to make it successful or profitable.

The objects to be attained by Mr. WING were to produce a superior article at a price mitable for all classes. For this he has labored long, and subjected himself to an adequate outlay of capital.

capital.

The pretense, therefore, on the part of any one cles, that they make FARINA CRACKERS, is simply a device rescreted to in the hope of selling more of an article than they otherwise would do, if offered under the proper name.

WING'S CRACKERS have a delightful taste, act kindly upon the stemach, and are digested with remarkable case. For dyspepties or the aged, as well as sedentary and delicate persons generally, they are most acceptable, and peculiarly pleasant for children.

erally, they are more acceptance.

Ask for WING'S CRACKERS, and take none but those stamped with the name "WING."

The life of so remarkable a man as HUGH MILLER.cannot fail to excite attention and interest. The name of HUGH MILLER is a "household word" wherever the English language is spaken. Born in the low-est ranks of life, his indominable will and wonderful gerlins raised him among the master spirits of selence. The Stone-Mason of Crounstry is admitted to be the greatest geologist of the age. The volume announced above presents a genial and appreciative picture of the life and times of this marvelous men. Written by one of his most intimate friends, a former collaborer with him on the selebrated "WIT-NESS" newspaper, and a resident in the same house with the subject of his Memoir, the author had abundant opportunities for studying his noble heart and manly character—opportunities which have proved invaluable, as his volume testifies. It is a genuine labor of love. American Congregational Union.—The Anneal Discourse before the American Congregational Union.—The Anneal Discourse before the American Congregational Union will be delivered in the Church of the Filgrims, Brooklyn, on TUESDAY EVENING, the 11th Instant, commencing at 7½ o'clock, by the Rev. LIFE THOUGHTS.

BY HENRY WARD BEECHER THE WORLD'S PREACHER.

"Touch of Nature, which makes the whole world bin."

The viger of thought, and freedom of otterance, in this new ork-its art, and oten brilliant Bustrations, and the carnest sympathy it shows with mankind, as well in their common wants as in their leftiest aspirations, combine to make it one of the most valuable, as it is use of the most popular, of modern books

"LIFE THOUGHTS"

Is wonderfully full of beauty and of the forcible illustration of truth. Read the following extracts:

The worst prisons are not of stone; they are of threbbing hearts, outraged by an infamous life."

" We sleen but the loom of life never stops; and the pattern which was weaving when the sun went down is weaving when t comes up to-morrow.

HENRY WARD BEECHER'S

LIFE THOUGHTS, Is literally a volume of geme, striking, earnest thoughts, as tru and wise as they are forcible and brilliant in expression. Among many others may be found the following: "The superfluous blossoms on a fruit tree are meant to symbol ize the large way in which God loves to do pleasant things."

"We go to the grave of a friend, saying, 'A man is dead,' but angels throng about him, saying, ' A man is born."

" A man in the right, with God on his side, is in the majority though he be sione, for God is multitudinous above all population of the earth."

THE GREATEST BOOK

THE NINETEENTH CENTURY. Few men have said more good things-more that acc with the popular Christian heart than before death, to secure heaven. But the Bible represents religion, not as the latest fruit of life, but as the whole of it-begin ning, middle, and end. It is simply right living."

"Let it be understood that the end of our existence here that we may be more God-like; and may we knew that we shall become so by being more manly in the world, and that we ar placed here to grow strong and noble, and not merely to en joy.

"There are two classes of people in the Church: the Religio ists, who love God by trying to do right; was the Carrella are inspired to do right by loving God.

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

" God made the world to relieve an over-full creative thought as musicians sing, as we talk, as artists sketch when full of sugcettions. What profusion is there in his work! When trees blessom there is not a single breastpin, but a whole bosom full of gems; and of leaves they have so many suits that they can throw them away to the winds all Summer long. What unnum bered cathedrals has He reared in the forest shades, vast and grand, full of curious carvings, and hazuted evermore by tremulous mosic; and in the heavens above, how do stars seem to have flown out of his hand, faster than sparks out of a mighty forge!

Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, New-York.

(Vote I. syn II.) HAVING PASSED THROUGH

THE UTMOST HOPES OF ITS PRIENDS, THE PUBLISHERS AR HAPPY IN LAYING BEFORE THE PUBLIC A FEW EXAMPLES OF THE ENTHUSIASTIC AND ALMOST UNANIMOUS FAVOR WITH WHICH IT HAS BEEN RECEIVED:

FROM THE LOUISVILLE JOURNAL.

"This is unquestionably one of the most valuable publications that was ever issued from the press. It will be useful to all classes of people, an' will turnish in itself a complete library of knowledge of every description. It is a work of which the publications are the complete library of knowledge of every description.

FROM THE PRESENTERIAN BANNER. "We must again expres our great satisfaction at the appear ance of this volume, which favorably introduces to the reading public one of the greatest works which any publishing house of ar country or age t as attempted to issue." FROM THE SOUTHERN LITERARY MESSENGER.

FROM THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY MAGAZINE. "As a book for the desultory reader, it will be found full of interest and attractiveness, while it is abundantly capable of bearing severer tests than any to which the desultory reader will be likely to subject it. The probability is that, when completed, it likely to subject it. The probability is that, when completed, is will be found to contain articles by almost every person of lite rary and scientific note in the United States, for the wide and friendly relations which the editors held with American author and squars, of all sects, parties and sections, will enable them t obtain valuable contributions, even if the general interest in the success of an American Cyclopædia were not sufficient of itself

"When the business man, of whatever class, may have on his shelves, provided in a form that makes it at once ascessible, it shelves, provided in a form that makes it at once accession, in fermation on any subject, general or special, in which he may be interested; when the professional man is similarly provided with historical, biographical, scientific, or literary material, ready for use as seen as wanted; and when the man of leisure and general learning has furnished to him, with all the facilities of ready reference, whatever he may at any time need to give new light or fresh interest to his studies so that each one has within portable compass the knowledge of most use to him, gathered from it naturals and advantage of most use to him, gathered from it naturals and such a work is the New American quiettion indeed. FROM THE RICHMOND INQUIRER. "We rejoice to see that this noble American work is free from all sectional and sectarian influences, and that, truly national in its character, it does impartial justice to every portion of the country. Among the numerous and distinguished pens, foreign and domestic, enlisted in the preparation of the work, we as happy to recognize many of the most brilliant and accomplished in Virginia and the South."

FROM THE BOSTON TRAVELER. "Cyclogadian used to be thought dry reading; but some of the articles in this are as instructive and extertaining as the best memoirs and critical essays. The range is wide, the treatment thorough, and the variety attractive."

the fruit of recent discoveries, and infuses it with a fresher and more lively spirit; and to the subjects treated of in those works it adds others which have escaped the attention of their editors r which have been brought into view by the progress of affairs nd the advancement of the race."

"Considering, then, that this work is in the hands of such edi-

FROM THE BOSTON COURSER. "The second volume of this admirable work fully sustains the high expectations justly awakened by the first. The list of names and subjects treated is very ample—far surpassing any similar work of the same class and dimensions in the language. Imput-ant matters are treated with fullness and elaboration, and all that we desire to learn is told about them."

FROM THE BOSTON BES.

"As a work of reference, it will unquestionably prove the very best, as it is the latest, in the language. All that care, labor, research, learning, experience, can add to its completeness, have been secured. In fact, it is the contribution of the very best minds in the country."

"To every cuitivated mind, one great magazine, containing the class to general knowledge, is aimost indispensable; and such a magazine we have in this admirable Cyclopudia.

"Take it all in all, for the strict purposes of a Cyclopadia; for a clear survey of all the departments of suman knowledge; for embracing every important topic in this vast range; for locid and erderly treatment; for statements condensed yet clear; for its The New American Epclopadia.

"It is a great national work. It will, if kept up at the hight mark all the way through, prove the best portable work of made-ral reference for Americans in the language. Books are books's and here we have a complete expenter's cheet of them, also and here we have a complete expenter's cheet of them, all sharpened, ready to use, of good metal and finished workmanshin. This Cyclopudia is a necessity to every literary man or general

FROM THE NEW-YORK DAY-BOOK.

"The work furnishes sketches, remarkable for justice and impartiality, of living persons of eminence. We have seldom seen a more careful, and apparently unbiased, judgment of living mean than can be found in this production. The nice questions of American politics, the careers of American statesmen, of Southern politicians, are all handled fairly and delicately. As particular instances of this justice, we notice the sketches of Governors Alken and Allston of South Carolina, and the narrative of the life of John Quincy Adams." life of John Quincy Adams."

"We congratulate Mears. Ripley and Dana upon the manuel in which their great enterprise has been commenced; and we shall look forward with interest to the remaining volumes of the work which the first two specimens warrant us in pronouncing the best and cheapest of all the encyclopædias now before the

FROM THE PETERSBURG (VA.) EXPRESS. "We must say that the New American Cyclopudia promises to be the most important book of general information over pub-lished in any country. There is here an earnest that the wood will contain a complete exposition of all human knowledge, and

FROM THE LONDON (Eng.) CRITIC. "A pleasant feature in the work is that the articles, importing what may be termed the heavier sort of information, are interpreted with light and amusing little essays upon men and main ners. It is impossible to peruse without a smile the following passages which form part of the article upon Actors and Act-

"A prominence, we observe, is very properly given to American Biography, Geography, and Industry, which could hardly be expected, and is never found in foreign cyclopedias; and subjects sufficiently well treated in other works are here presented from an American point of view, or in their American relations."

is exposed in this volume; and while it is so interesting, we wenture to say that it presents as much information within a given space as any book extant." FROM THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN.

"To judge by the execution of the work thus far, we can but think that the country should be congratulated on the succession attriced. The plan includes biography, as well as facts of all arthred. I pass other sorts; and the design of rendering the volumes a tractive and interesting, as well as intrinsically valuable, has been a bieved. to a greater extent probably than in any work of the kind-swell

The result confers upon the New Cyclopedaia a permissip American character, of practical and immediate utility. Its fresh ness and general thoroughness give it a decided advantage over any cyclopedmia of its class, hitherto issued on either side of the FROM THE BOSTON TRANSCRIPT.

FROM THE CINCINNATI COMMERCIAL A comparison of this with other works of the kind leads us to the belief, that in the extent of its range, and the number of artithe belief, that in the extent of its large, and the cles it contains, it will be far shead of any popular dictionary now extant; and that it will furnish for the family, the counting room, or the study, the most convenient and comprehensive library of reference known to our language.

"It is decidedly the most valuable book that has issued from the American press for these many months; and indeed we doubt whether one of such real practical utility as this promises to be, if the present volume is a specimen of these which are to follow, has ever been published in this country. It is literally a magical set of useful facts, embracing within its range of inquiry aimset. every subject of human knowledge."

cessary in the compilation, are not to be computed in such parrow

"Many journals and pursons in this country, bastard American and aliens in spirit, will endeavor to reiche here the epiterial onts cry of foreign critics, but it will be all in valu. By our national organization we are more capable than either Eoslish or continuation to take cy slepadial, philosophical, coampolitar views of men and things. Although this New Cyclopadia may be decomed to sin, in some of the directions in which its European predocesers sinned, it will, on the whole, be juster, less biased, less prejudiced."

FROM THE RURAL NEW-YORKER This Cyclopeds will, when completed, prove the most inter-esting and valuable repertory of general knowledge within the reach and means of the American peeple, and benez is one of the most desirable and indispensable works obtainable. It will se-fect hear and credit, alice upon its editors and publishers, and American literature. It is remarkable, and additionally valuable, from the fact that it is fresh and timely, giving the most recent in-formation and data on the subjects treated.

FROM THE BOSTON CULTIVATOR. "The second volume of this, the great work of the age, has been published, and the solid satisfaction with which we have persued some of its articles would incline us to speak in a manager that might seem extravaguat to many who have not enjoyed as examination of the first volume. We have called this the great work of the age, but not without being perfectly conceious of the rature of what we were saying, nor without taking into consideration some of the most remarkable publications of this great day of the age, when the printing press seems to be in the zenith of its power and usefulness."

FROM THE N. Y. CHROMICLE.

"We have found it clear, succinct in its statements, profound in its views, learned and comprehensive in its materials, and full of the information which one expects to obtain from a book of reference."

every library, public and private.

"As a compand of the latest inventions, in which the present that the property has been so very profile, it will at once take precedence over every other work extent."

PROM THE NATIONAL INTELLIGENCES. "The amount of new matter cubraced in this veiture, the absence of individual opini n and inviduos criticism, the geograph inpertiality, as well as learning, of the articles on reliation, hisography, and politics, will strike the reader, we think, with peopliar force."

"More imposing than the first by 25 pages, the second volume is also more interesting, more alive. There are not less than a hundred principal articles abunding in fresh and carrious facts, and, we should say, at least fifty that are not to be found in any other book of reference. Edward Everett, George Ticknor and Professor Felton are among the contributions. You will not overlock as the distinguishing feature of this preeminently American work, the fequent occurrence of the dates 1367, 1828—of allusions to the Crimean war, to the great Indian revolt, and to the grim crists where shade whas hardly passed from us. In so vast a granary of knowledge, it is pleasant to find on the top the very wing, wings of yesletdey."

FROM THE RICHMOND EXAMINES.

"The work promises, from the contents of this first volume, to be the very latest, as well as the very best, of modern encyclopedias.

"It will really be a Dictionary of Universal Knowledge. The scholar and professional man will find it stored with references in every sphere of learned inquiry."

FROM THE PHILADELPHIA PRESS.

"The materials for such a work as this are to be found, above all, in the personal knowledge of the large corps of contribution (nearly one hondred in number) whose cooperation has been made available for this great labor. Of these writers, as we have said, the majority are American cifizens; but many writers in Great British and on the Continent of Europe have been pressed into the service, and have rendered efficient sid."

FROM THE CHARLESTON MERCURY.

"Such a work is a great desideratum, and, furnishing, as it were, a complete library in itself, will save the expense and labor of keeping and searching through a thousand other volumes.

"The editors have done their daty with justice, fairness and illustrative. We see no instance of partiannaing or partialty, and as yet no proofs of that hostile sectionality of which we have hitherto had reason, in all such publications to compania."

"This great work has upward of a handled contribution of the work has upward of a handled contribution of the world, who, under the direction of cities, will produce the most complete the there are a stant."
